Together, we will be heard!

The mental health system in North Carolina is a terrible mess. The “reform” that North Carolina mental health care has been through has resulted in a system in chaos.

The mental health care crisis in North Carolina is causing untold suffering in patients and their families. The crisis results in an enormous loss of earning potential and interferes with our children’s education. People who need treatment are flooding our emergency rooms and filling our jails and prisons.

In the face of all this, more and more of our tax dollars are being moved from actual treatment to funding a failing and mismanaged government bureaucracy.

We are all paying the price.

Incredibly, our state leaders have been indifferent to this serious problem and have been unwilling to do anything about this mental health care crisis. With a few notable exceptions, there has been a real failure of leadership.

Join NCMentalHealthVOTE.org. Together, we will be heard.

NCMentalHealthVOTE.org seeks to unite all North Carolinians who care about mental health and responsible government into one strong voice that will be heard by politicians in Raleigh. We will make the mental health system in North Carolina an issue that candidates in the 2008 election cannot ignore.

Whether you are person with mental illness, a family member or friend, a mental health professional, or a just concerned citizen who cannot stand to watch the mental health system in North Carolina fall apart any longer, we need your help.
